Suicides and Crossroads.
It has been suggested that suicides were buried at crossroads because it was usual to erect a cross at such places. Those who were excluded from holy rites were buried there as the place next in sanctity to consecrated ground. It was an old superstition that the devil danced at crossroads and that the erection of a cross theretofore would prevent such unseemly practices. From this or some other superstition, such as the fear that his ghost might walk the earth, arose the custom of driving a stake through the suicide's body.

These plausible theories have gained many advocates, but it is more likely that burial at crossroads was intended as a mark of indignity. The temples, or rather altars, of the heathen Teutons were mostly at the junction of crossroads. The place of execution was there, and criminals were sacrificed to the gods; hence suicides were buried at the crossroads to give as strong an impression as possible of heathen burial. Probably, too, the publicity of such a spot, which insured the fact that a great number of people would become directly aware of the degrading consequences of the crime, had a good deal to do with its selection.

A curious fact in this connection is to be found in Plato's Laws (book IX, chapter 12). The murderer of any of his near kin, after being put to death, was "cast out of the city, naked, in an appointed place where three roads meet, and let all the magistrates, in behalf of the whole state, carry each a stone and burl it at the head of the dead body."

"Norma" and Liberty.
In an air in the opera of "Norma" the theatrical censor went so far as to cancel the word "liberta" (liberty) and substitute for it the word "lealta" (loyalty). * * * Signor Ronconi, the famous baritone and a great public favorite, having, in the ardor of his role, forgotten the above mentioned emendation, was imprisoned for three days in order to refresh his memory.

Not long after, singing the line in the "Elixir d'Amore" describing how a peasant enlisted, "Vende la liberta, si fe soldato" (He sold his liberty to be a soldier), he waggishly altered it to "Vende la lealta, si fe soldato." This variation in the text was received with lively applause by the public, who always warmly welcomed anything that savored of political opposition.

The next day the poor singer was summoned by the head of the police to receive a reprimand for having said that "loyalty could be sold," to which Ronconi replied by observing that a few days before he had been taught in a way he was not likely to forget that "lealta" ought always to be substituted for "liberta."—Pietro Orsi's "Modern Italy."

Her Prospects Good.
"Do you think he can support you in good style after you are married, dear? I hear he is worth nothing."

"I know Harold isn't rich, mamma, but he has his life insured for $20,000, and I could get along quite comfortably on that."—Chicago Tribune.

CHEAP PRODUCTS BY TRUSTS.

There is a new place given to the trust when it is claimed to be a scientific outgrowth of the business experience of the age. The claim presents a problem that is very much upon one side of the question when its science in domestic economy is applied to the people. The science in a political sense that is open to observation is upon the side of the trust, sustained by a political party that refuses any relief against its scientific robberies as it is used in the economy of the nation and in the domestic affairs of the individual citizen.

Should it be permitted to remain in its present scientific relation to the country and to the people, it will be means of scientific application of its scientific principle have the people begging for bread. The economy there is claimed to exist in favor of trusts in the matter of cheap production is not shared by any person who is no a stockholder in the system as now directed. The saving there is in cheap production through organized and capitalized systems as applied is no entitled to be classed among scientific discoveries or among scientific developments.

The principle upon which a trust is organized is not a late discovered principle, nor has it an existence in late discovered facts. The principle or facts upon which the trust has its foundation have been known to those who were more dishonest than virtuous in business methods for many centuries. The science there is in a trust, if any there is, consists in providing means whereby the courts because of the universal, and iron rule of law cannot reach them without additional legislation, which the Republican party has refused to furnish for the relief of the people.

Should there be a principle, as claimed, to the economy of trusts that may be made useful to mankind in the form of cheap production, it will not be applied to their advantage until the Republican party has lost its power for evil and the more virtuous attributes in many commercial people have been quickened by the application of the principle included in justice and righteousness to a callous conscience.
There is not anything wrong in cheap production, provided its benefits are given universal application, but therein is a principle of justice that the age is not in a position to apply. The principle there is in cheap products for the benefit of all men is not subject to universal application at present.

The principle has been sought to be applied to communities for centuries but its attempted application has always been a result of force, and when the principle is subject to the control of monied monopolies it is not likely that any beneficent application of the principles will be made as a voluntary offering. Therefore force would have to be applied to the trust before any positive good could come to the individual citizen. It has been and is the experience of the most advanced jurists that the proper way to force a monopoly is to abolish it.

Any system applied to general trade or commerce which closes or has a tendency to close its avenues, is against public policy and for that cause should be abolished. Cheap production and a higher scale of wages would be to the advantage of labor, but cheap production secured through large capitalization that has succeeded in abolishing all opposition to its undivided control over products of any kind is possessive of power, which will require better efforts by labor in a governing sense, than it has yet given to control it, power in a way to make the fact of cheap production a success in the interest of working men.

It is well to theorize and make picture of a millennium age, but the rough side of human nature will have undergo a refining process it has not known or is likely to know till man has been placed in his natural position above the dollar. While the dollar is above the man, as it is at present, in a national Congress and in the legislatures of most of the States it is a good time to use force, sufficient to change the legislative halls in the nation from dens of thieves to places where a more pure and moral atmosphere will be es-sured, to the upbuilding of better and more moral conditions than have been known for many years where legislative bodies convene.

New Schedule.

The Virginia & Truckee express now leaves at 5:35 a. m. and arrives at 7:10 p. m. making close connections with nearly all trains on the main line.
This change in time is greatly appreciated by the train men.

Game Driven In.

The snow has driven the quail down from the hills. Yesterday morning a hundred of these toothsome birds had possession of a row of trees on West street. Another indication of a hard winter.

The doctrine of evolution, which is another term for progress, had its origin in well defined facts and principles but the impossible in a present sense is not within the scope of science and should not be expected. Time is essential to the work of evolution and what may be seen in the dim future as a possibility may be at this time an impossibility, which it is proper to conclude from all the facts present, that the fact of cheap production presented by trusts and administered through trusts, for the benefit of the people, is not within present possibilities.

THE DEVIL AND HIS BROTH.

How can any person with the slightest shadow of consistency vote for Bryan and at the same time cast his ballot for the Republican nominee for Congress? It is practically tying the hands of the President, who, without the support of the legislative branch of the government, is powerless to carry out the principles of the voter, as manifested and expressed by his ballot for Bryan. It is as inconsistent and ridiculous as would be the voting for a Prohibition candidate for President of the United States, and the president of a liquor dealers' association for member of the lower house, or one vote neutralizes the other. Mr.
Farrington, if elected, will oppose the administration of Mr. Bryan, as he would in honor be bound to do as a member of the party which denounces the platform adopted at Kansas City, and endorses the one formulated at Philadelphia. As a matter of fact, a vote of a Bryan man for Mr. Farrington would manifest the same degree of folly and inconsistency as scratching a name on the Bryan electoral ticket on account of the voter's more friendly personal relations with an elector on the McKinley ticket.

Mr. Newlands has opposed the administration of Mr. McKinley, as he will support that of President Bryan.
If for no other reason than that, he should receive the support of every Democrat and Silver party man in the State who votes for Bryan, and aside from the admitted fact that his ability, experience, and his standing in the lower house, have constituted him one of the leaders of that body, thereby enabling him to carry through legislation favorable to Nevada, under the administration of either Bryan or Mc-Kinley, with greater certainty of success than a member without experience and never before heard of, in all probability, by any member of the house.

It is an old saying that it is as bad to let the devil as drink his broth, and Mr. Farrington most assuredly cannot be regarded in that connection as the broth of the gold standard, imperial-ist and trust-fostering devil, Wm.
McKinley.

Have Uncovered a Large Ledge.

The stockholders of the Nevada Exploration and Development Company feel highly elated over the turn affairs have taken on Peavine. A large ledge has been unearthed on the Great View o'awn. It is quartzite gangue, containing gold, silver and copper.
The cappings of this formation are largely basalts. The copper occurs in the form of chalcocyanites.

A tunnel is being run to tap the lead in the Owendore claim. Six men are employed, and work will continue as late as the weather permits.

Superintendent J. H. Brown informed us last evening that the company was planning to erect a plant on the ground to concentrate and smelt the ore.

Assembly Address.

Rev. Samuel Usworth delivered the General Assembly address yesterday afternoon. His subject was "The Origin of Languages." The speaker traced the evolution of spoken words, which originated in sounds typifying the object to be expressed. Mr. Usworth's paper dealt with the subject in an abstract manner and nothing less than its complete reproduction would do justice to the masterly effort.

Passing of Dick.

Dick is dead. He committed suicide yesterday by hitting his head against a plate glass window. Everybody knew Dick. He was the little feathered songster that often claimed as mascot of the Western Union office.

Dick would sit for hours on George Wilson's sofa, listening intently to the message that were tickled over the wires.

Change of Operators.

Miss Humphries, Western Union operator at Carson, passed through Reno last evening on her way to San Francisco, where she will receive medical treatment. Her place will be taken by Mr. Halliday, formerly operator at Wadsworth, but later with the signal service in the Philippines.

New Schedule.

News of All the Counties in the State Clipped From Exchanges.

There are 300 names entered on the Lovelock registry list.

The Wadsworth high school is going to have a school paper. It will doubtless meet with success.

The Lovelock Bryan and Stevenson Club has 140 members and the McKinley Club less than thirty.

Two genuine hobo girls drifted into town yesterday morning on a freight train. Several of the boys aboard of their coming and were at the train to welcome them—Nevada News.

Wrecked the Horse.

Miss Flossie, a dove with soiled wings, got too much tea about yesterday morning and along about 3 o'clock wended her way to the Del Easo saloon, weighted down with a cargo of brick bats and cobble stones. The barker per and rounders bravely stood their ground on the first charge, but a bombardment of grape and canister forced them to beat an inglorious retreat.

Flossie then proceeded to smash every bottle and glass in the window after which she turned her attention to smashing window panes and doors.

They Stole It Rich.

It was a grand thing for this community that such an enterprising firm as S. J. Hodgkinson secured the agency for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the wonderful remedy that has startled the world by its marvelous cures. The fury of enthusiasm over it has boomed their business, as the demand for it is immense. They give free trial bottles to sufferers, and positively guarantee it to cure Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, and all Throat and Lung Troubles. A trial proves its merit. Price 50cts. and $100 expenses.

A sheet and pillow case party will be given Friday evening in the University Gymnasium. The Delta Rho society will be the hosts. This event is to be given in honor of the Theta Epsilon society. About eighty couples are expected to be present.

The claims allowed by the commissioners at their last meeting exhaust the town funds. Thus the city will have to wait until the collections for 10% are available in order to meet the expenses.

MINES AND MINING

News of Nevada's Leading Industry Clipped From Exchanges.

Among the medals awarded the Americans at the Paris exposition two at least have been taken down by Captain Dr. Lamar from his Utah and Nevada mines.

Oscar J. Smith has been appointed receiver for the Wadsworth company at Eureka, Nevada, by Judge Dunne of the Circuit Court of Cook county, Illinois.

A number of the boys who worked at the Logan & Hulley mill in Comstock have been laid off. The plant will probably be closed down for the winter in a week or two.

Fraternity Social.

A sheet and pillow case party will be given Friday evening in the University Gymnasium. The Delta Rho society will be the hosts. This event is to be given in honor of the Theta Epsilon society. About eighty couples are expected to be present.

under water.

Strange acquaintances are to be made under water. H. Phelps Whitmarsh, who for a time adopted the calling of pearl fisher in Australian waters, tells this story of meeting a submarine monster:

"It was a muddy day, and everything in consequence looked blurred and exaggerated. In the yellow distance I saw an immense dark object moving slowly toward me. As it came nearer I made out a central body with several great arms, or feelers, waving rhythmically. My heart was in my mouth.

"I felt sure it was an octopus. Then, when I was about to stir up the mud at my feet to avoid being seen, I discovered that the enemy was nothing more than a fellow diver. The feelers I had imagined were his arms, legs and lines.

"A shadowy giant about 12 feet high, with huge hands and a head like a small barrel, was approaching. He walked slowly, his heavy boots raising the mud behind him like a cloud of dust, and his great central eye gleamed darkly. Although I knew him to be a man, it was with difficulty that I restrained from taking to my heels. At sight of me he, too, was startled, but he quickly recovered, and we shook hands. Then we nodded, grinned, showed each other the state of our bags and parted."

A Jolly Funeral.

An Italian doctor named Louis Corruccio, who died in the eighteenth century, left some curious instructions as to the manner of his burial. This gentleman, by his will, forbade his relatives to weep at his funeral on pain of being disinherited and appointed him or her who should laugh the longest and loudest the principal heir and legatee. Not a stitch of black was to be displayed either in the house in which he should die or in the church in which he should be buried. They were both to be strewed with flowers and green boughs on the day of his funeral. Instead of the tolling of bells lively music was to accompany his body to the church, and 50 minstrels were to march with the clergy sounding their flutes, trombones and trumpets. The bier was to be carried by 12 marriageable girls clothed in green, to each of whom the testator bequeathed a sum of money for her dowry. Lastly, no one in the procession was to wear black. All these orders were absolutely carried into effect—Household Words.

God of Mischief.

Panoma was one of the gods of in mortal times. His duties were to make all sorts of trouble in the human family. The name of this deity has been cribbed for the title of a campaign paper which G. C. Lary is furthering. The first issue will be out next week.

announcement to the effect that Hon.
Henry Hudson would address the man did not relish the "jokes" and emphatically stated so. With the exception of this little difference of opinion the meeting was an interesting and enthusiastic one.Charles Stoddard, William W. Web-

An Omitted Negative.

The "intelligent compositor" and the "angle-eyed proofreader" combined their efforts in yesterday's JOURNAL to make an intelligent sentence ridiculous. Lighting never strikes twice in the same place and this "ball" is simply the sequence of the shifted heads the other morning.Please remember that no doubtful characters will be admitted to the L. X. L. club's ball Friday evening.
The sale of tickets has been large and an attendance of very excellent and pleasant people is looked for at this, the opening ball of the season.

The Beautiful.

Yesterday morning the sun shone upon snow-capped hills. Several inches of "the beautiful" fell on the ranges around Reno, but by sunset it had all disappeared except upon the Sierras. The mercury is falling steadily week by week. Winter will soon be upon us and the "oldest inhabitant" predicts a severe season.

Silver Wedding.

The silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs.
B. O. Shearer was celebrated yesterday.
Ben had forgotten all about the anniversary until the last moment, but his friends remembered it and many handsome presents found their way to the Shearer residence.

A Holy Day.

Yesterday was the Jewish sabbath of sabbaths, the day of atonement. The faithful in this city kept their places of business closed until the going down of the sun.
